

Artist Studio Series: Sara Reeve

By Scarlett Rebecca.

In this Artist Studio series I will be talking to a range of artists about how they work, visiting their studios; finding out about the peculiarities of their studios, how they use them and what the studios mean to them. I will be visiting an artist with a tiny space in their garage, artists in shared studios with other people and shared facilities, and I will also be sharing an insight into my own home studio space.

The second in my series of artist studio visits is to the studio of painter Sara Reeve. Sara's studio is also at her home but, unlike mine, it is separate from her house and importantly for Sara, she needs to leave the house to get to it. I was especially interested in speaking to Sara to find out about her progression from kitchen table to studio and how this changed how she works.
