

Expressive Painting & Colour Mixing

By Paula Briggs

This post shares how we can enable an exploration of primary and secondary colours, colour mixing and expressive mark-making with paint, with primary-aged children.

Most often, when schools introduce children to primary and secondary colours, it is through the creation of a colour wheel, often with the expectation that the execution will be "neat", turning the process into a technical skill.

In this session, pupils learn about primary and secondary colours through hands-on experience of paint mixing and, importantly, paint application. They use a variety of made and sourced "tools" to help them apply the paint, layering primary and then secondary colours, and exploring expressive mark making. They start to think about how to use colour and mark making in response to what is already there - a key skill in painting.

Children work on sheets of paper (approx A4) and then consolidate the learning by choosing sections of their painted sheets to develop as sketchbook work, helping develop reflection and articulation skills, ready for the next stage of learning.

	Please log in here to access full content.
Username	<input type="text"/>
Password	<input type="password"/>
	<input type="button" value="Login"/>	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Remember me
	Forgot Password

To access all content, I would like to join as...

An Individual

Creative practitioners, educators, teachers, parents, learners...

From £3.50

An Organisation...

Schools, Colleges, Arts Organisations: Single and Multi-Users
From £42

AccessArt is a UK Charity and we believe everyone has the right to be creative. AccessArt provides inspiration to help us all reach our creative potential.

See This Resource Used In Schools...

You May Also Like...

Pathway: Expressive Painting

This is featured in the 'Expressive Painting' pathway

Talking Points: Brush Work of Van Gogh & Cezanne

Talking Points: Marela Zacarías

talking points: Charlie French

Session Recording: Expressive Painting

