

Red to Green: Block Printing

By Sheila Ceccarelli

Learners at Red2Green enjoyed the process of block printing in which they got totally immersed. Students were uninhibited by the mess and visible chaos of the session, which led on from Taking Rubbings and Making Compositions.

Tutors and students at Red2Green and their classroom turned into a print-studio during AccessArt's residency

Learners at Red2Green getting to grips with block printing

Students used natural and made objects pressed into foam board to create patterns, textures and designs.
