

Looking, Talking and Celebrating

Sheila Ceccarelli

How often do young, visual creatives get a chance to show off their talents both to the public and also with friends and family?

Students at AccessArt's Experimental Drawing Class look through their work

It's as important for young, visual creatives to gather confidence to show their work, and be able to talk about it, as it is for young musicians to have a chance to play in recitals and gigs or emerging actors to have the confidence to perform on the stage.

I dedicated this last session of term to looking and talking about students' work, produced over the last two terms, and then invited parents to see what they'd achieved and have a celebratory drink and snack as well.

	Please log in here to access full content.
Username	<input type="text"/>
Password	<input type="password"/>
	<input type="button" value="Login"/> <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Remember me
	Forgot Password

To access all content, I would like to join as...

An Individual

Creative practitioners, educators, teachers, parents, learners...

From £3.50

An Organisation...

Schools, Colleges, Arts Organisations: Single and Multi-Users
From £42

AccessArt is a UK Charity and we believe everyone has the right to be creative. AccessArt provides inspiration to help us all reach our creative potential.
