Stephanie is an artist teacher in an all girls school with mixed sixth form in central London, where she has taught for almost twenty years, the majority of those as Head of Art.

Stephanie began her career as a scenic artist, painting backdrops for the theatre, where she loved the scale and vibrancy of the stage. Fate brought her to education, and she is passionate about creativity and the arts being giving the time, attention and dedication it deserves.

Her role as a specialist leader for education allows Stephanie to work with other department leaders to develop their creative curriculum and raise the profile of their departments through 1:1 support.
