

Teachers Own Creativity

<< Back to Pedagogy in Practice <<

How can we invest in our own creativity as educators?

Explore why it is important that teachers have the time and space to develop their own creativity or arts practice.

benefits of being an artist teacher

Stephanie Cubbin reflects on her dual role as an artist teacher, and the benefits of her artistic practice for herself as a teacher, her students and colleagues.

More in “Pedagogy in Practice”

Why Is Creativity Important?

Planning a Creative Curriculum

How Do We Assess Creativity

Ideas Between Settings

Inspirational Case Studies

