

Teenage Creativity Outside School

Whilst teaching art in schools ensures (in theory) that all children can access a high quality art education, projects which take place outside the structure of school can help explore and develop new practice and new ways of working. Explore the #BeACreativeProducer project below which aimed to help develop teenage creativity outside formal education.

You can also find lots of resources exploring teenage creativity through workshops here.

#BeACreativeProducer

Explore the #BeACreativeProducer project which aimed to give teenagers the skills to balance their creativity in the physical and digital world.