

The New Manifesto for Making!

Paula Briggs and Sheila Ceccarelli have been working to support making in schools for over 20 years. Find out more about our #WhatDidMyChildMake campaign.

Please share! Print out this PDF version and post it in your school, museum, gallery, community centre or home. And don't forget to sign up to receive updates from AccessArt by leaving your email address (top left) if you have not already registered with us.

Let's be proud of our ability to make things and get more people making.
Makers are brave people: putting an idea out into the world and making it real takes guts!
Thank you!

We think it's great that:

- You like making.
- You can see the potential in transforming the world around you.
- You are inspired by things you see.
- You enjoy seeing how other people make things.
- You enjoy making things alone.
- You enjoying making things in groups.
- You like the things you make and are proud of what you've done.

When you are making, remember:

It's OK to make a mess.

It's OK to keep trying.

It's OK to start again.

It's OK to be inspired by someone else.

It's OK to take risks.

It's OK to get sore fingers.

It's OK to get annoyed when something falls over.

It's OK to not always know what you're doing.

It's OK if things go wrong!

I declare I am PROUD of My Ability to MAKE Things, and I Will MAKE SURE that I MAKE Things Every Week!

Signed:

(Your name)

#WhatDidMyChildMake
www.accessart.org.uk

Print The New Manifesto for Making PDF here – lets get every child signing up!

Make, Build, Create:
Sculpture Projects for Children by Paula Briggs

The New Manifest for Making is taken from Make, Build, Create: Sculpture Projects for Children by Paula Briggs, to be published by Black Dog Publishing later in 2016.

Make, Build, Create follows on the success of Drawing Projects for Children (Black Dog Publishing 2015).