“I really enjoy portraiture and illustration because they allow me to visualize and communicate some of my ideas and opinions about social issues such as climate change and the education system. I consider myself a very visual and imaginative person. I enjoy trying new things – I don’t stick to a particular style or theme and I hope I can get the chance to experiment further with this opportunity. I also look forward to sharing my work with others in hopes of inspiring them to pursue their passions.”
